THE INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION IS

The project to exhibit in Paris in the year various industries of the globe, was commenced at a time when this country wa ceive that attention from the public, or tha ent from the press, which its importance demanded. The scale of preparation, the system of classification and arrangement, is far superior to any affair of the kind which Without question it is to be the grandest exposition of the ingenuity and skill of the industrial arte and occupations ever presented to the world. It will be the or of more interest and will convene daring its term of exhibition more peo-ple than any event which has occurred since the dawn of time. Mr. Bronnow, in writing to the Secretary of State on the subject

"It is proposed to appropriate the Champs de Mars to the Exposition. A vast building its to be constructed in the centre of this beautiful space, which embraces about 150 acres; and around the edifice, at a proper distance, groups "of houses; or small Villages." tance, groups of houses; or small village will be constructed and furnished to repr sent the domestic habits and characteristi f different nations. This will probably be greatest novelty of the Exposition."

the greatest novelty of the Exposition."

Prince Naronsus is the President, and under his administration nothing will be cuitted to make it a complete success. The system of classification is so admirable that re present it for the interest of our readers. It consists of divisions into ten groups, in the following order: Works of art. Mate rials, and their application to the liberal arts. Furniture and other objects used in dwellings. Garments, tissues for clothing, and other articles of wearing apparel. Products, wrought and unwrought, of extractive Instruments and processes of common arts. Food, fresh or preserved, in various stages of preparation. Animals, and specimens of agricultural establishments. Living products, and specimens of hurticultural establishments. Objects exhibited with a special view to the amelioration of the moral and physical condition of the popula-

In this wide field of display, affording as it does competition in every phase of industrial development, our country is invited to While we cannot rival the old world in the realm of fine arts, or in those costly and elaborate fabrications which gratify the wants or taste of Juxurious civilization, yet on of the common arte, in raw ists and productions of the earth, in pres and staples which are both the envy and son ure, and emancipates mankind."

It will be the mission of the United States street both these truths. This Govern ment will appear at Paris as the liberator omillions of bondmen; it will also present the vidences of its invincible strength in milltary provess. There will be the implements of warfare which proved so destructive of human life and property, and there also will be the sanitary surgical triumphs that did so much to assuage and moderate the horror no ordinary or uninstructive lesson to the Kings and Kaisers of the Old World, when with their own eyes they witness the tents, equipments, and model of the soldiers of the Republic of which two millions and six hun. dred thousand were mustered in, and all save those who were discharged by death, or the mere remnant now retained, were mustered out within four years. It will be no unwel come lesson to the people of Europe that such vast armies could be speedily raised and safely dispersed in a republic.

that from the elde sivilizations we look for money to fund our debt, and for immigration to till our soil and develope our country, we can but acknowl edge that no such opportunity has ever been furnished to this nation to show to the European capitalists the strength and se curity of our institutions, or to the toiling as of overcrowded Europe the vastness of our resources and the value of a hom mongst us.
